EXPERTISE

Michael first undertook forensic accountancy work in around 1986. He take instructions from firms of solicitors and insurers and on both claimant and defence work.

Michael is a Founding Member of the Expert Witness Institute and has experience in producing Expert reports, and also in providing Expert testimony under cross examination in Court.

His experience in forensic accounting includes matrimonial cases, fraud investigations, false accounting, Proceeds of Crime Act cases, valuation of businesses in shareholder and partnership disputes and financial claims arising from many forms of litigation. In particular, he has worked on complex loss of earnings computations arising from personal injuries.

As a Partner in a general practice, the day to day experience in advising clients on various accounting and tax issues has stood him in good stead when examining some of the most diverse cases that he has been instructed on.

Rushtons Forensics is the Lancashire representative of NIFA (Network of Independent Forensic Accountants), whose membership consists of independent accountancy practices throughout the UK who specialise in forensic accountancy, and are able to provide a cost effective alternative to the national firms of accountants.

TRAINING

NIFA provides forensic accountancy training seminars on topics such as changes to legal reporting standards, valuation methods and the latest issues in the industry.

Likewise, the Expert Witness Institute provides similar training seminars and information that Michael is able to benefit from as a member:

Michael also undertakes training to keep up to date of current developments in audit, accountancy and taxation work by means of Rushtons' membership of a North West Region training group.
